I. Read the passage and answer the questions that follow:

Aarav loved collecting unusual things. While other children collected stamps, coins, or toys, Aarav collected sounds. During his summer break, he carried a tiny notebook everywhere and carefully wrote about every interesting sound he heard. Early in the morning, he listened to chirping sparrows and rustling leaves swaying in the breeze. In the garden, he heard buzzing bees flying around colourful flowers.

Sometimes, Aarav visited the busy market with his mother and noted the clinking cups at tea stalls and bicycle bells ringing on the streets. In the evening, he enjoyed listening to laughing children playing in the park and soft raindrops tapping against his window at night. By the end of summer, Aarav had created his own 'Sound Diary,' a magical memory book filled with nature's music and everyday sounds that reminded him of his happy summer days.
